

Inspectors from the Care Inspectorate visit caregiver families like yours to find out how well you are looked after.

They want to check that:

You are safe and part of a family

Foster carers are good at looking after you

You live in a nice place, with enough space to make your home a nice place to be

It is important for inspectors to find out what is good about your life, and what could be better.

You can get involved by telling us what it's like in your caregiver family.

You can also raise a complaint with us about your care and support by texting us on
